

LEONLOARD COMMISSIONED PORTRAITS

Artist: Clyde Burnette, Georgia

Clyde Burnette began winning prizes for his oils at state fairs while he was barely a teenager. Working as a commercial artist and serigraphist for forty years, Clyde leans on this experience to achieve a remarkable likeness in his preliminary compositional drawings. For the last 35 years, he has painted oil portraits with the same enthusiasm and inspiration that he gave the advertising field. His dexterity with the oil medium is apparent in the way he handles clothing, highlights on the hair, soft and natural skin tones, making the portrait full of life yet serenely simple and pleasing to the eye.

Burnette received a Fine Arts degree from William and Mary College and is a graduate of Pratt Institute. He became the first President of Atlanta's Professional Artist Association, and served 3 years on the Board of Directors at Callanwolde Fine Arts Center. Although busy with committees and associations, Burnette spends a great deal of time getting to know each subject he paints, in order to capture the real feelings and emotions of the individual.

A versatile painter with incredible control, Burnette's portraits represent his subjects' character from the strong and penetrating to the soft and understated. His clientele include portrait commissions for families, corporations, law firms, religious and educational organizations and the medical profession. He was asked to paint Arch Bishop Eugene Marione's portrait for the Christ the King Cathedral, as well as James Wilson, Jr.'s portrait for the Alabama Faces of Destiny traveling exhibit. His painting of Martin Luther King, Jr. stands on display at the National Historical Site in Atlanta.
